Lunations and Long-term Aspects

This is your month, Aquarians, when the Sun spends the majority of time in your Sign. Now is the time when you begin a new cycle by way of your Solar Return. Give yourself a birthday present by checking out your Solar Return Report. These are my absolute personal favorite. It will provide you with all sorts of insights and understanding of what to expect (and not to expect) in the coming year, thus directly your energy in a much more efficient manner.

The New Moon on February 13th will have the most punch for those of you born on that date, give or take a day. If that applies to you, then you can expect all sorts of new experiences and situations to come your way this coming year. Of special interest with this New Moon is that there are two Yods, also known as a Finger of God. One has Pluto and Venus at its base and retrograde Mars at the eye. The overall implications are that something related to your past, more than likely something that's been buried, is going to trigger some action in your financial area that will ultimately focus on resolving an old relationship issue which may but not necessarily involve your significant other. The implications could also be of the romantic nature, depending on your circumstances. Expect some arguments, but stick with the facts, be ready to have to defend your position, and hope for an outcome that will leave your smiling. The other Yod has Saturn and Mars at the base with Venus at the eye. This one has implications for recognizing your social responsibilities, which point to some financial issues, though romance is a possibility here as well.

Remember that square between Saturn and Pluto will be out there for several months. There's something buried out there that is starting to stink which you need to take responsibility for and clean up accordingly. More than likely you already know what it is, so enough said.

The Full Moon on February 28 occurs in Virgo, your 8th House of transformations, shared resources, debt, sex, and death accompanied by regeneration. This house gets a lot of bad press but in reality it's like calling in the roto-rooter to clear your blocked sewer lines. A Full Moon implies an ending or culmination, so hopefully this will herald the grand finale for something in this part of your life. On the most positive side it could indicate paying off a loan, possibly a big one, or the advancement of a relationship to the next level. Unresolved relationship issues are still vying for your attention and are going to require some adjustment or a course change on your part to resolve. If any inspiration comes your way with regard to making money or treating yourself in some way, listen up as it is worth pursuing.

Short-term Aspects

February 5: A favorable change to your financial direction is possible today. Keep your eyes and mind open and be willing to adjust accordingly.

February 6: A good day for tuning into your spiritual side. Watch for inspiration that will be unconventional but comfortable and present an opportunity. Expanding something of value to you can happen if you deal appropriately with the past.

February 7: Another very favorable day for some insight, inspiration or imagination that relates to your lovelife or wallet. It may not be reality, however, so don't do anything rash.

February 10: Adjustments to your finances to resolve an old relationship issue or vice versa are likely today. Mercury goes into your Sign, helping facilitate the needed communications.

February 11: Venus goes into Pisces, which should have financial benefits and also bring some pleasant experiences your way. Now is a good time to relax or do something for yourself.

February 12: That unresolved issue with someone close to you is digging away at your past and demanding a change of course or explanation. Adjust or defend yourself as appropriate. Favorable news or information is on the way. It could relate to a move, legal matter, or academia though it may simply have an uplifting effect on your core beliefs.

February 13: New Moon as described above.

February 14: Happy Valentines Day! You can get what you want today using your charm and good looks. It's an excellent time to take care of something you neglected to do before but are being given a second chance. Your ego is likely to be softer than usual today, but this will work to your advantage. If you're feeling mellow and dreamy, enjoy it while it lasts.

February 15: Another opportunity today to clean up the past that should come out in your favor.

February 16: A excellent day to enjoy or indulge yourself, provided you don't go overboard. Keep an eye out for positive financial opportunities or a possible windfall.

February 18: The Sun enters Pisces, your 2nd House of finance, possessions, values, needs and pleasures, bringing emphasis to that part of your life for the next month.

February 20 - 21: Focus on anything that might be holding you back, whether it an old relationship or your beliefs. The climate out there is good today for taking care of both and moving in a new direction.

February 23: Another favorable day to take care of any unfinished business, particularly if you thought you'd swept under the rug. If you're holding yourself back in some manner, confront it today.

February 27: You're likely to be dreamy and find it hard to concentrate today. Resistance is futile so relax and enjoy it. If you have anything on your schedule today that requires acute mental concentration, postpone it if you can since you're likely to look like a space cadet.

February 28: Another favorable day for your finances or doing something for yourself. Full Moon as well, as described above.
